

CWP provided me with practical experience that continues to benefit me even now. There is no better way to learn about the intricacies of running a business than by actually doing it, and the support and experience that the executive staff brings is unmatched. The fact that as a freshman in college I was doing something that the majority of people won't do their entire lives says a lot about the progress that can be made over the course of only a year, and not just in business. I am willing to take on challenges now that I wouldn't have dreamed of prior to doing this internship. Though I did have setbacks and difficulties throughout the summer, I can now look back and attribute them to not following the advice I received. If I would suggest anything to the newest group of entrepreneurs it would be to follow the advice of your DMs from the very beginning. They are where they are because they know how to succeed, use them!
