

To whom it may concern,

Starting the summer of 2006 I was informed about a possible job opportunity for some kind of painting job. My good friend Adnan Hussain talked to me about possibly painting. Not having any professional experience painting I was skeptical that I would make an acceptable painter. As school started to wind down Adnan asked if I was serious about working for him. I thought why not ? If College Works is interested in incentive based pay then I will be great for the position. I went to ICI training early in the summer in which I met Adnan's boss, Jake Koller, who seemed very nice. I would say the management made me feel very comfortable and fed me for coming to training, nothing like a free lunch! Over the summer while painting our first house it seemed that Adnan was extremely concerned with our safety. Adnan was constantly making sure that everything was going along schedule and was extremely easy to get along with, even on the 100 degree days. I was extremely excited to find out that I could interview for the position of branch manager if I did well as a crew chief. I believe that we ran an extremely efficient and prosperous business.
